There is one thing on which the majority of voters will unite most heartily, the return of Woodrow Wilson to normal health.

Just as Oregon was settling down to its pastime of cashing dividend checks for its big rosy apples, along comes Mother Earth and shakes the state out of its complacency.

The Youngstown sheet mills are booming. These are not the sort of sheets which furnish plenty of cover on summer nights but they cover a multitude of hearaches by furnishing employment for men long idle.

Labor terrorism and police terrorism are terms freely uttered in the little civil war which Chicago is experiencing at the present time. The police have this in their favor, they are guardians of the law and the normal presumption would be that they are looking after the work appointed them to do.

Although not entirely satisfactory to either the German or Polish government, the impending settlement over the Silesian question is likely to be more satisfactory to the average private citizen of those countries than recourse to arms again.

Senator Beveridge evidently does not agree with the Democratic press that profess to see in the Indiana primaries a defeat of the national administration. Mr. Beveridge, speaking for himself, says he believes in party government and expresses that sort of faith in President Harding encompassed by the hope and expectation that the latter will occupy the presidential chair for seven more years.

It looks like the 20th amendment would have to be added to the federal Constitution before competition of children of the South will cease to haunt the North which seems to care more for preserving the future generations intact through child labor laws. The efforts of Congress to prohibit child labor in the nation have come to naught because, on being brought to a test, the laws were found to be unconstitutional.

The United States is wanted at The Hague conference regarding Russia. America surely will have to be represented at one of these European conferences before many months have passed. The Harding administration will await the conference at which it appears likely the various countries will feel constrained to lay all their cards on the table and soberly discuss how each land may resume normal prosperity without encroaching on the rights of others.

ANTQUATED LAWS.

Judge Florence E. Allen's statement that Ohio is laboring under the handicap of antiquated laws is not the assertion of a scantly informed person who has noticed some isolated case and has jumped to the conclusion that it is typical of a general legal condition. It is the declaration of a jurist who has heard scores of cases, who has conferred with eleven other Cuyahoga judges on their experiences, who has been a student of law and who has watched it in operation.

While the administration of justice in a rural county is probably a much less complicated matter than in the metropolis of the state, Judge Allen holds out that Wood county gets a rebound of what happens in Cuyahoga county. If criminal cases there be conducted under antiquated machinery of justice, every other community suffers as well as Cleveland. And that there is a tardiness in convicting criminals in the big cities or a failure to convict at all has been pointed out by lay observers and contrasted with the expeditiousness with which Canada and England mete out justice.

A sensible thing for Ohio to do would seem to be to hold a convention of legal and sociological experts for the purpose of rewriting Ohio laws with a view of eliminating that which has outgrown its usefulness and of incorporating those things which would make for efficiency and expedition in administering justice. Sufficient experience has surely been enjoyed by society in the past centuries so that the gamut of probable human criminal activities could be run readily and the technicalities and injudicious procedure be removed.

CHILD PICKETERS.

The present effort to place the President in a false light before the people by picketing the White House with pathetic little ones outdoes the most consummate trickery of wartime propagandists. However unscrupulous manufacturers of public opinion may have been in the past they have kept the cradle sacred.

Mr. Harding is placed in a very difficult position. If he ignores these children no amount of explanation can convince many people that he has not been cruel and hard-hearted despite the trumpetry of the whole affair which is so apparent to Washingtonians. If he allows their presence to influence his actions he will be false to his duty. The people who brought them to Washington were clever. They know the universal appeal of a child's voice.

But the President appreciates the subterfuge.

He has given long and careful attention to the cases of political prisoners and generosity as well as justice has characterized his pardons. Doubtless he has considered their families in making his decisions. The presence of the children does not place in his possession any new facts. No charge of disregard for children can rest against Mr. Harding. Such a charge might be justified, however, against the propagandists who seek to influence his opinion or force his hand by such methods—Washington, D. C. Herald.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE.

Governor General Wood of the Philippines, it appears, is looking for a little matter of $10,000,000 of army funds which seem to have been mislaid in the last administration. This is not the first cabled message to imply that under Governor General Francis Burton Harrison there was a generosity of management which is rarely if ever found in well regulated business concerns. A striking instance of this munificence of government expense is found in Mr. E. Alexander Powell's book on Melanesia, called "Where the Strange Tales Go Down." This volume shows that Mr. Powell and his wife, her moving picture operator and four friends of the governor general, were sent on a pleasant cruise of 6,000 miles upon a government coast vessel with a crew of sixty-six men.

Little objection, perhaps, would be found in this costly expedition had it been devoted exclusively to the exploration and advertisement of the Philippines. But, as a matter of fact, the Philippines get but twenty-four of the 277 pages of this book. Some 500 miles of the 6,000 were in Philippine waters, after that the whole journey was devoted to Borneo, Java and Sumatra. The expedition dropped Powell and the movie man at Singapore and the boat then had some 2,000 miles to steam in order to get home to Manila.

Uncle Sam or the army or the Philippine administration must have been set back quite a tidy little sum for this excursion. Mr. Powell naturally accepted the chance. But it is not quite so easy to explain the attitude of Governor General Harrison and Manuel Quezon, then president of the Philippine senate and now professional spokesman for the Filipino independence movement. Harrison was strongly in favor of the junket, according to Powell, while Quezon was so enthusiastic about it that he dug up an old law, stretched it beyond all recognition and thus fixed things up for the private use of a government ship in foreign waters.

We trust this little cruise has come to the notice of Governor General Wood. It may serve as an arrow pointing the way to further leakages in the administration of the islands. And it may give the governor a new line upon the governmental abilities of the Hon. Manuel Quezon.—Chicago Evening Post

AN OLD DEMOCRATIC STUNT.

The desperation of the Democracy is evidenced by the issues they are attempting to trump up. Having squandered several months in attempting to belittle the results of the conference on the limitation of armaments the Democrats have suddenly changed their ground and are now trying to amass evidence to prove that the idea originated with them.—Parkersburg (W. CLEVELAND—The murder suspect in the hunt for the killer of Mrs. Helen Silberberg, 42, East Side society leader, eluded efforts of police to run him down today. The man, a friend of a woman formerly employed by the Silberbergs, vanished just after the crime was committed. The woman is being held as the hunt for the man goes on. Late this afternoon the police developed a new clue which led to the calling in of Anton Silberberg, husband of the slain woman. Police declared they were confident that Silberberg could aid materially in clearing up the mystery if he consented to tell the whole story.
